Report on Judicial Candidates in the June 28, 2022 Primary
For Vacancies on the, Appellate Court, First District, Countywide Vacancies on the Circuit Court of Cook County, and Subcircuit Vacancies on the Circuit Court of Cook County

(Candidates are listed in ballot order. Those designated with an (R) are found on the Republican ballot. All other candidates are found on the Democratic ballot.)

May 2022

Primary elections for state-court judges will be held on June 28, 2022. To assist the public in evaluating the candidates for judicial office, the Chicago Council of Lawyers has evaluated candidates for vacancies in Cook County.

Attached is the Council's report of its evaluations of candidates for vacancies on the Illinois Appellate Court, First District; for countywide vacancies; and for vacancies in the judicial subcircuits of the Circuit Court of Cook County.

INTRODUCTION

Judicial candidates seeking election must run for specific vacancies. Candidates seeking election to the Circuit Court – which is the County's trial-level court for both civil and criminal matters -- may run in either a countywide or a subcircuit race. Legislation creating the subcircuits provides that approximately one-third of the judges are elected by voters of the entire County, and each of the remaining judges elected by voters runs in one of fifteen geographical districts into which the County has been arbitrarily divided. Once elected, there is no distinction between a "countywide" judge and a "subcircuit" judge. Either kind can be assigned to any judicial post in the County.

The Council rates candidates as "highly qualified," "well qualified," "qualified," or "not qualified." If a candidate refuses to submit his or her credentials to the Council, that candidate is rated "not recommended" unless the Council is aware of credible information that would justify a "not qualified" rating. Because we believe a willingness to participate in bar association and other public evaluations is a key indicator of fitness for public office, no candidate who refuses to be screened can be found "qualified."

EVALUATION METHODOLOGY

The criteria for the Council's evaluations are whether the candidate has demonstrated the ability to serve on the relevant court in the following categories:

- fairness, including sensitivity to diversity and bias
- legal knowledge and skills (competence)
- integrity
- experience

- diligence
- impartiality
- judicial temperament
- respect for the rule of law
- independence from political and institutional influences
- professional conduct
- character
- community service

If a candidate has demonstrated the ability to perform the work required of a judge in all of these areas, the Council assigns a rating of “qualified.” If a candidate has demonstrated excellence in most of these areas, the Council assigns a rating of “well qualified.” If a candidate has demonstrated excellence in all of these areas, the Council assigns a rating of “highly qualified.” If a candidate has not demonstrated that he or she meets all of the criteria evaluated by the Council, the Council assigns a rating of “not qualified.”

We apply higher standards to candidates for the Supreme Court and the Appellate Court. Because these Courts establish legal precedents that bind the lower courts, their work has a broad impact on the justice system. Moreover, qualities of scholarship and writing ability are more important to the work of the Supreme and Appellate Court justices than they are to satisfactory performance as a trial judge.

The Council does not evaluate candidates based on their substantive views of political or social issues. Nor do we take into account the particular race in which a candidate is running or the candidates against whom a candidate is running. We apply a uniform standard for all countywide and subcircuit elections because judges elected through either method can be assigned to any judicial position in the Circuit Court.

As part of the evaluation process, we require candidates to provide us with detailed information about their backgrounds, including any complaints filed against them with the Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission (“ARDC”) or, where applicable, the Judicial Inquiry Board (“JIB”). If a candidate does not participate in our evaluation process, we are unable to obtain that information. Therefore, we assign those candidates a rating of “not recommended.”

In conducting these evaluations, the Council has participated in a joint investigation and interview process with the Alliance of Bar Associations for Judicial Screening (“Alliance”). The Alliance includes the following bar associations: Arab American Bar Association, Asian American Bar Association, Black Women Lawyers Association, Chicago Council of Lawyers, Cook County Bar Association, Decalogue Society of Lawyers, Hellenic Bar Association, Hispanic Lawyers’ Association of Illinois, Illinois State Bar Association, Lesbian and Gay Bar Association of Chicago, Puerto Rican Bar Association, and the Women’s Bar Association of Illinois. The Council’s evaluation process includes:

- (1) a review of a written informational questionnaire provided to the Alliance by the candidate, including details of the candidate's career and professional development and information on any complaints filed against the candidate with the JIB or the ARDC;
- (2) a review of the candidate's written responses to the Alliance's supplemental essay questionnaire;
- (3) interviews of judges, attorneys, and others with personal knowledge about the candidate, including those who have and those who have not been referred to the Alliance by the candidate, and not restricted to Council members;
- (4) a review of the candidate's professional written work, where available;
- (5) an interview of the candidate done jointly with the Alliance;
- (6) review of any information concerning the candidate provided by the ARDC;
- (7) a review of any other information available from public records, such as the Board of Election Commissioners and prosecutorial agencies; and
- (8) an evaluation of all the above materials by the Council's Judicial Evaluation Committee; and
- (9) submission of the proposed evaluation and write-up to the candidate prior to its public release, to provide an opportunity for comment, correction, or reconsideration.
- (10) appellate process: Each candidate will have the opportunity to appeal both their evaluation rating and their evaluation write-up. The appeal should be based on the content of the evaluation write-up, but candidates are encouraged to add any other information bearing upon their evaluation by the Chicago Council of Lawyers.

When the candidate is a sitting judge, the Council places special importance on interviews with attorneys who practice before the judge, particularly those who were not referred to the Council by the candidate. Most evaluations are based on information gathered and interviews held during the past few months. In cases where the Alliance evaluated candidates within the past five years, the Alliance requested updated information, but did not investigate or interview candidates again for the March 2020 primary, instead relying on the earlier results.

In evaluating candidates, the Council expresses written reasons for its conclusions, while abiding by promises to protect the confidentiality of its non-public sources. Without knowing the reason for a recommendation concerning a candidate, the public cannot use the bar's evaluations intelligently to draw its own conclusions.

It should be noted that a lawyer might be performing well or even very well without being qualified to be a judge. A good lawyer may be unqualified to be a judge, for instance, because of a narrow range of prior experience, limited trial experience, or limited work doing legal research and writing. A lawyer may have the temperament and intelligence to be a judge without yet having worked in a position that would allow the candidate to demonstrate that capacity. Similarly, a candidate may have an outstanding resume but lack the temperament or patience to perform well as an even-handed or respectful judge. Accordingly, it should be recognized and expected that we will rate some good lawyers "not qualified."

Candidates Listed are on the Democratic Ballot, unless noted as running on the Republican ("R") ballot.

Illinois Appellate Court First District Vacancies

Illinois Appellate Court – Hall Vacancy

Hon. Russell W. Hartigan – Qualified

Hon. Russell W. Hartigan was admitted to practice in 1976. He served as a Circuit Court judge between 2010 and 2017. He was appointed to the bench by the Illinois Supreme Court in 2010. As a lawyer he practiced for 34 years before becoming a judge and has practiced since retiring from the bench in 2017. He has been exceptionally active in bar association activities.

As a lawyer, Judge Hartigan had substantial litigation experience in both civil and criminal law matters, including appellate court experience. He was praised for his litigation skills, for his temperament, and for his integrity. As a judge, he spent much of his career in the Bridgeview Courthouse hearing a variety of cases. He was a well-respected jurist who was praised for his courtroom demeanor and management skills. The Council finds him Qualified for the Appellate Court.

Hon. Dominique C. Ross -- Not Qualified

The Hon. Dominique C. Ross was admitted to the Illinois Bar in 1995. She was elected to the Circuit Court in 2008. She is currently a trial judge in the Domestic Relations Division. Prior to serving on the bench she was a solo practitioner

Judge Dominique Ross is considered to have good legal ability and is active in community activities. Respondents praised her knowledge of the law. She is reported to be respectful to all parties. However, some lawyers complain that it can take months to get an order issued and she is often not on the bench at the scheduled time. In addition, Judge Ross does not provide published works or other writing to establish her qualifications to be an appellate justice. The Council finds her Not Qualified for the Appellate Court.

Hon. Debra B. Walker -- Well Qualified

The Hon. Debra B. Walker was admitted to the Illinois Bar in 1987. She was elected to the Circuit Court in 2008 and is currently assigned to the Domestic Relations Division. Prior to becoming a judge, Hon. Debra B. Walker was a partner at the firm Clausen Miller PC, litigating professional liability cases from 1996 until 2008. After working as an associate at Williams & Montgomery for 6 years, Judge Walker was a Senior Associate at Brydges, Riseborough, Peterson, Franke and Morris from 1993 to 1996.

Judge Walker is considered to have good legal ability as a trial judge. She is praised for her ability to handle the sometimes complex financial issues which come before her, and she is reported to have good court management skills. She is considered to have a good temperament and is always prepared. Her opinions are reported to be well reasoned, thorough, and issued in a timely manner. The Council finds her Well Qualified for the Appellate Court.

Previously he served as Senior Counsel at the City of Chicago Law Department (2017-2019). He was appointed to the bench by the Illinois Supreme Court in 2015 and served until 2016, when he failed to win election to the bench. He was an Associate (2003-2007) and later a Partner (2008-2015) at Laner Muchin, Ltd., where he represented employers in a wide array of labor and employment litigation, and an Associate (1999-2003) at Wildman Harrold Allen & Dixon, LLP, where he represented plaintiffs and defendants in state and federal courts in a variety of commercial litigation. He began his legal career at the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois as a Law Clerk to the Hon. Blanche M. Manning.

Devlin Schoop is considered to have very good legal ability and trial skills. He has substantial experience in complex litigation matters. There have been a few negative reports about his temperament during the year when he was a judge, but the majority of reports on Devlin Schoop indicate that he is a well respected attorney who has published articles on legal issues and has been active in community activities. On balance, the Council finds him Qualified for the Appellate Court.

Hon. John H. Ehrlich -- Qualified

The Hon. John H. Ehrlich was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1998. Prior to becoming a judge, he worked in the City of Chicago Law Department and has been Chief Assistant Corporation Counsel in the Torts Division. Prior to that, he was in private practice handling commercial litigation matters. He was elected to the bench in 2012. Since 2014, he has been assigned to the County Department, Motion Section of the Circuit Court of Cook County in Chicago, Illinois, where his docket consists of non-commercial tort cases. His previous judicial assignments were in the County Department, Chancery Division, Foreclosure Section (2013) and the Municipal Department, First Municipal Division, Traffic Section (2012-2013).

Judge Ehrlich is praised for his legal ability and for being well prepared. He is punctual and his opinions are reported to be well reasoned and thorough. The Council finds him Qualified for the Appellate Court.

From December 2020 to the present she is the General Counsel for the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

Tiffany Brooks is considered to have good legal ability and has excelled in the variety of professional positions she has had. She is praised for her temperament. The Council is concerned, however, that she has limited trial and litigation experience. Her practice lacks sufficient breadth and depth to be a judge. She has been a lawyer for 12 years, only half of which she was providing individual representation. On balance, the Council finds her Not Qualified for the Circuit Court.

Jackie Marie Portman-Brown - Qualified

Jackie Marie Portman-Brown was elected to the bench in 2008 and left the bench in 2020. Prior to becoming a judge, she was general counsel at the Independent Police Review Authority from 2005 to 2008. From 1998 to 2005, she served as an Assistant Cook County State's Attorney. Former Judge Portman-Brown has served as the Presiding Judge of Adult Redeploy Illinois for the First Municipal District as well as the Presiding Judge of the State's Attorney Office Deferred Prosecution Program. Some attorneys report that she is knowledgeable about the law and innovative, and that she applies the law with compassion. But other attorneys noted a pattern of judicial behavior demonstrating a lack of professionalism and some accused her of pre-judging cases.

In 2020, the Executive Committee of the Circuit Court referred a matter to the Judicial Inquiry Board. In a highly publicized situation Judge Portman-Brown had her grandniece locked in the lockup behind her courtroom as part of a discipline. Judge Portman-Brown has expressed regret for her actions; the JIB investigation is ongoing.

Her behavior on the bench has been described by some as quirky, but effective. Some lawyers praised her fairness on the bench in criminal law matters – particularly during the time after 2018 when she was assigned to a primarily narcotics courtroom in the Felony Trial Criminal Division. Her detractors say she is erratic and unpredictable. The Council has balanced the positive reviews Judge Portman has received against those who question her judgment. The Council on balance finds her Qualified for the Circuit Court.

He has done domestic violence order of protection pro bono work.

Mr. Trowbridge is considered to have good legal ability. He has had substantial litigation experience in a variety of areas. Judges and practitioners praise his litigation skills. A few respondents questioned his temperament, but on balance, the Council finds him Qualified for the Circuit Court.

John Fritchey -- Qualified

John Fritchey was admitted to the Illinois Bar in 1989. For about two years he practiced before administrative tribunals as an attorney with the Illinois Attorney General's Office. He then practiced with a small firm for another 4 to 5 years. He then became a politician, first as a State Representative and then as a Cook County Board Commissioner. He was defeated in 2018. He has been president of his own consulting firm for the last 15 years. In 1998, he created the John Fritchey Youth Foundation, designed to create educational and recreational opportunities for local children through the sponsorship of academic and sports programs

Mr. Fritchey has little litigation experience and that was within the first 7 years of his career. But he is well respected as a politician, and is considered to have good ability. The Council recognizes his lack of actual trial experience, but Mr. Fritchey has had a career of public service, and as a politician, he has made impressive contributions to the public interest in a wide variety of legislative areas. The Council believes that his work as a respected public servant compensates for his paucity of litigation experience. On balance, the Council finds him Qualified for the Circuit Court.
